DETAILED ACTION

Specification

The specification is objected to under U.S.C. 112 first paragraph as failing to adequately describe the invention. It is not clear how the turbine rotor rotates in the embodiments of figures 1-4,7-9,12-13. It would appear that water would flow straight past the blades 24 of the turbine because the blades are aligned in the same direction as the flow direction. Water would not impact the working surface of the blade 24. There would be no force applied to the turbine to turn it. Thus a pulsating massage effect would not be created.

Claim Rejections - 35 USC § 112

The following is a quotation of the first paragraph of 35 U.S.C. 112:

The specification shall contain a written description of the invention, and of the manner and process of making and using it, in such full, clear, concise, and exact terms as to enable any person skilled in the art to which it pertains, or with which it is most nearly connected, to make and use the same and shall set forth the best mode contemplated by the inventor of carrying out his invention.

Claims 1-13 are rejected under 35 U.S.C. 112, first paragraph, as failing to comply with the written description requirement. The claim(s) contains subject matter which was not described in the specification in such a way as to reasonably convey to one skilled in the relevant art that the inventor(s), at the time the application was filed, had possession of the claimed invention. Referring to the specification objection above, it is not clear how the claimed invention would operate. A pulsating massaging effect would not be created. The turbine rotor does not appear to be configured to rotate once hit with water.

Conclusion

The prior art made of record and not relied upon is considered pertinent to applicant's disclosure.
